The report of the committee on City Railroads, who visited New York for that purpose, was laid on the table and ordered to be printed. The following is a copy of the report: "The committee on the part of the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Common Council of the city of Washington, appointed at the invitation of Messrs. Yerby, Dewey, and others, to visit the city of New York for the purpose of examining the practical workings of the local railroads of that city, proceeded, in conformity to said invitation, for the purposes therein expressed, and submit the following as their report : The attention of the committee was more particularly directed to what is known as the Park Row Third Avenue Railroad,' as it presented, in their judgment, the greatest number of obstacles and objections, owing to the fact that a portion of this route rous through very narrow and thronged streets. This road is laid from Park Row, near Broadway, to and along Chatham street to the Bowery, thence along the Bowery to Third avenue, thence along Third avenue to its present terminus at 6 street. "The width of the streets from Park Row to the Bowery are thirty-two feet, from curb to curb; from the Bowery to the Third avenue, the streets vary in width from sixty to eighty feet; from this point along the line of the Third avenue to 61st street there is a uniform width of sixty feet. This entire route, from Park Row to the present terminus of Third avenue at 61st street, forms the great thoroughfare to and over the Harlem River at Westchester. The length of this road, now completed and in operation, is four and a half miles. on this line a double track, with grooved rails, laid upon cross ties, four feet apart, which are firmly bedded in concrete; the rails are so laid as to come even with the sur-face of the paving on ther side, thus pre-venting no obstruction wehicles in crossing the track. The guage of the road is four feet eight inches and a half, with a space of five

"The ears running over this road are 17 feet long, exclusive of the platform at either end, by six feet eight inches wide; the seats are arranged lengthwise, wi'h a space of three and a-half feet between them for a passage way; twenty-six passengers can be comfortably seated, while as many more can be accommodate! remained a little too long-old lady was close with safety by standing on the platforms at either end, which are under cover, or by standing in the passage way of the cars, and holding on bars provided for that purpose, attached to the ceiling of the cars. The wheels of the ears are thirty inches in diameter; the height of the first step from the ground is about ten inches, thus making the ingress and egress determined to be too smart for them-accordto the ears safe and easy, particularly to ladies and infirm persons; in fact, such is the facility with which the passengers may get into and leave the car, that in many instances the car does not stop either to receive or discharge a to the closet to let Susy outpassenger.

"Each car is provided with a careful driver and conductor. The driver stands upon the front platform, and has near to his right hand a crank, which operates upon the breaks attached to each wheel, so that the motion of the cars can be almost instantaneously arrested. The conductor has the general superintendence of the cars, collecting the fare, preserving order, &c Each car is drawn by two horses, which are changed every trip. The number of cars running upon this line is fifty in summer, and forty in winter, running as follows:

"From 4 to 6 o'clock, A. M., every 10 minutes from 6 A. M., to 9 P. M., every 3 or 5 minutes; from 9 P. M., to 12 P. M., every 10 or 15 minutes: and every hour thereafter until 4 o'clock

A. M. "There are required for this service 450 horses and 300 men.

"Your Committee have endeavored to present the detailed operations of this road, as far as they were able to observe them, as well as from information obtained from the company and others, in order to remove, if possible, the many erroneous impressions which are evidently abroad in reference to local railroads in this community; they are unable, however, by any report which they can make upon this important subject, to show at once the great utility and convenience of this mode of transit.

believing that experience alone will and must accomplish that very desirable purpose. "Your Committee are entirely satisfied, that so far as it regards the safety, comfort, and cheapness of this mode of common carriage, that it is superior to any other now in operation. It is very evident to every reflecting mind, that by increasing the facilities of communication between the more distant portions of our city, that our population, especially on the extremes, must increase, from the fact that our homes and places of business are brought within a few minutes' ride of each other, and many persons who, owing to the high rates of property in the centre of the city, are unable to procure themselves permanent homes, will be enabled to obtain for themselves and families. that which every citizen should aspire to, a BALTIMORE, March 13-10 P. M. The case of the Rev. Mr. Hildebrandt, which has occupied the attention of the Methodist Episcopal Conference, still in session here, was gravings and paintings which decorate the smally disposed of this evening, by expelling walls of the refrectory, give it the appearance him from the conference and the church. He was charged in the ambiguous or modified language of the ecclesiastical indictment, with being guilty of a gross outrage,-that outrage understood to be undue, unchristian, and unmuch that the result cast shadows of sin becontrary would result in a great good to the community at large, and more especially to not even standing room, so filled was the these sheep's clothing, a scathing admonition, under which his foul heart winced, and he was bid share his mortification. If the case be as represented, I am only astonished that any respectable member of the Conference could be found voting to sustain such a man. Of all men in the world, a preacher, "stealing the livery of heaven to serve the devil in," is the worst and least to be pitied, when detected in guilt. He sins with his eyes wide open, and incroaches upon unsuspecting innocence in the garb of virtue.
